Chap. 1

Definition: Small economy

A country is small, if its economic activities do not have any influence on the economic variables in the rest of the world.

(income, prices, interest rates, etc.)

What countries are small: US large, Denmark small ?

"Small economy" is a technical term of economic modelling. Variables of foreign countries are exogeneous in the model.

The adequate question is:

For the question analysed, does it make sense to assume that a country does not have any influence on e.g. prices or income in the rest of the world?

Does it make sense to model the country as a price-taker?

Example: Ivory Coast is a small country if we analyse financial markets or growth in the rest of the world.

But it is certainly not a small country if we analyse the world market for cocoa.
